References

3. Aggarwal, and Chugh, Sunita. (2003), Learning achievement of slum children in Delhi. New Delhi ;, National Institute of Educational Planning and Administration,p. 59

4. Aggrawal, Yash. (2001), Progress towards universal access and retention. New Delhi, National Institute of Educational Planning and Administration, pg.194

10. India, Ministry of Human Resource Development, and National Literacy, (1999), Reaching the unreachd: innovative strategies for providing out of school children with access to basic education. New Delhi, NLM, pg. 102

17. Mehta, Arun, (2008), Elementary education in India : analytical report 2006-07 : progress towards UEE., National University of Educational Planning and Administration, New Delhi: NUEPA.

33. Sharma, Suresh. (2009), Literacy and school attendance in India., New Delhi: Institute of Economic Growth, pg. 35
34. Singh,Joshii, and Garia, (2003), Social acceptability of parishadiya primary schools in comparison with other type of schools functioning in the same area. Lucknow: Giri Institute of Development Studies, pg.195