Objectives of the Present Work

A 1  To identify qualities which are essential to be a leader.

B 1  To identify the need and relevance of developing leadership qualities at undergraduate level, the target age group being boys and girls of age group 17-21 who are studying in colleges in India.

B 2  To study whether these qualities can be developed in the target age group of boys and girls of age group 17-21 who are studying in colleges in India.

C 1  To study the effect of structured, disciplined regimental training in developing leadership ability in the target age group.

C 2  To analyse the effect of structured, disciplined regimental training in developing leadership ability in the target age group.

C 3  To assess the impact of structured, disciplined regimental training in developing leadership ability in the target age group.

D 1  To compare the levels of leadership ability of persons who have undergone such training with those who haven’t, in the same age group.

E 1  To develop a structured, disciplined, regimental training programme which is implementable and sustainable for undergraduates in the country.