Objectives of the present work:

- To study the transportation problems related to the industries like steel, heavy engineering, chemical, textile, fertilisers and electronics.
- To examine the effectiveness of the existing optimization techniques used for solving these problems
- To suggest new algorithm for three variables transportation problem with fixed constant in the present business situation
- To verify the suggested algorithm for three variables transportation problem with fixed constant