Research Methodology

This study is mainly comments on general application of e-resources in services of library and information especially technical libraries of Punjab and concentrate on the aspects of concept and meaning, resources and components of information communication technology and their use.

This is a survey research in which sample survey has been done based on the status, strength and courses of the engineering colleges of Punjab.

A questionnaire will be prepared for librarians and the students. On the basis of questionnaire the data will be collected and then analysed and presented in the form of tables, charts diagrams etc. to highlight state of the art of the engineering colleges of Punjab.