Work Plan / Research Methodology –

In research methodology the researcher will collect data by theoretical and practical ways and will try to utilize of research methodology like experiment, surveys, observation, interviews, observation of functioning of legal institutions in the society for collection of data.

1) Research Design –

The Research will involve the evaluating the role of judiciary in tackling the social and legal problem of violence against womens in the society. Consequently the research will be designed to achieve the objectives set out by the researcher and to make suggestion for the improvement of the status of women in the society.

2) Population –

The targeted population for the study includes the following –

A) Women

B) People[men and women] belonging to rural areas, urban areas

C) Advocates, Enforcement officers and Non-Governmental institutions.

3) Sampling and Sampling Techniques –

Data collection by

A) Questionnaire method or B) Interview method
4) Sources of Information-

The research study shall employ the use of both primary sources and secondary sources of data collection. The researcher will go through the various books, newspapers, journals, case laws etc. The researcher will gather information from different legislatures, law journals, recent amendments for constructing a recent review on the topic. The researcher will also involve field work which will make available the actual grievances and problems of the social and legal aspects of crime committed against the women in India.

Research Methods –

The Research is based on Doctrinal method as well as Non doctrinal method. The Researcher need to follow the Doctrinal method as it involve lots of material which have to be gathered from the secondary data sources like books, journals, articles in a newspaper etc. The Researcher also need to follow Non- doctrinal method as the research involve the field work to collect first hand information like taking interviews of victims and other people and interacting with them to understand the actual situation in that society. The researcher shall try to find out those principles, rules and regulations which can serve the purpose as well as the principles of law, so that social goals may be achieved.