Objectives

• To analyse various ethical principles and illustrate the importance of adhering to ethical standards in medical research involving human beings.
• To explore the loop holes in the legal frame work for conducting medical research by, focusing on the area of informed consent.
• To examine the problems that may arise because of the commercialization of medical research.
• To identify effective schemes and policies through which relief and compensation may be ensured for those gravely affected by medical research.