Hypothesis

It is proposed to test the following hypothesis.

1. There are many Non-Governmental Organizations (NGO’s) active in the field of women’s rights, women education, activism against violence on women, domestic violence etc. All of them profess to have such noble objectives in their charter. Quite a few of them get grants from either Government of India, private national and international donors. This theses will examine to what extent these NGOs have been able to get successfully work towards women’s rights by conducting an informal audit about their activities and their impact. It will thus examine the questions as mentioned in the succeeding paragraphs.

2. Have the NGO’s of Maharashtra followed their policies in the interest of liberation of women or not?

3. Have the management of NGO’s of Maharashtra been effectively operating in the interest of development of women? What has been the progress in this direction?

4. Are the NGO’s of Maharashtra implementing women empowerment policies effectively?

5. Is there a wide scope for further research in respect of policies and issues of NGO’s of Maharashtra?
