INTRODUCTION:

Language is a very common means of communication. Language is used to express ideas, views, thoughts, concepts, acceptances, moods, feelings, likes, dislikes etc. Language can contribute to the growth of individual personality and to the unification of people. Language is not a natural phenomenon, but, it is a creation of man’s social needs. Language is an extremely complex and highly versatile code. Apart from language or spoken words, we also use other devises, such as, gestures, signs, drawings, symbols and sculptures as a means of communication, but, they are notaffable enough to replace the language or the spoken words.