HYPOTHESES:

1) Educated working women have a high level of awareness regarding various investment avenues available to them.

2) Educated working women have a very low risk-bearing capacity.

3) Educated working women are greatly influenced by male members of their families while making investment decisions.

4) Demographic factors (age, income and marital status) have a high level of influence on the investment pattern followed by educated working women.