1. RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

Research methods are the techniques to be used by researchers in his research by considering the objectives and hypothesis. The methodology always depends upon the fact that what kind of research the person is doing on his research topic.

This research is analytical research and basic object is to gain knowledge and analyze the present situation. Hence research will be primarily of Doctrinal Research and researcher will rely only on secondary data. Researcher will collect material from various sources like books, journals, seminar proceedings, Law Commission Reports, Reports of Government bodies and Non-Government Bodies, Internet, newspapers, case laws etc.