regime and international security system. This raises security dilemma in the international level. Now the international powers are in dilemma of how to respond to deal with the expected nuclear risk emanating from Pakistan.

Reference

- Chandran, Suba (2013): India, Pakistan and the Nuclear Race: No Clear Winners, in Corad, Portia B.: (2013) Nuclear South Asia, Quarterly of the Nuclear Security Programme; IPCS, NewDelhi

- Dittmer, Lowell (2005): South Asia’s Nuclear Dilemma: India, Pakistan and China; ME Sharpe Inc.
- Gilgrist, James (2008): The ‘Security Dilemma’ and South Asian Nuclear Relations: India-Pakistan”; E-International relations
- Jones, Benett, Own (2002): The Bomb; Yele University Press, Viking
- Kapur, Ashok (2011): India and South Asian Strategic Triangle; Routledge, Oxon

• Ram, N. (1999) Riding the Nuclear Tiger; Leftward Books, India, New Delhi

• Secher, Todds, (2004): “South Asia and Nuclear Future”; Centre For International Security and Cooperation, Stanford University, • Shuja Sharif: “Pakistan: Islam, Racialism and The Army”; School of Social Sciences Victoria University, Melbourne.

• Snyder, H. Glen (1984): “Security Dilemma in Alliance Politics”: World Politics, vol.36, No. 4: 461-495

• Sreedhar, S (2003): Pakistan After 9/1; New Delhi, Manas publications

• Sreedhar (1986): Pakistan’s Bomb A documentary Study; ABC Publishing, New Delhi

• Subrahmanyam , K(1986): Pakistan's Bomb; New Delhi, ABC Publishing,

• Tellis, Ashley J; Denmark, Abraham and Tanner, Travis (2013): Strategic Asia 2013-14:

