OBJECTIVES

1. To assess the level of stress and anxiety among first year nursing students during their initial clinics.
2. To find out the relationship between level of stress and coping strategies among student and its relationship with selected demographic variables.
3. To find out the relationship between level of stress and coping strategies among student nurses
4. To find out the effectiveness of the clinical teaching strategies used by teachers in selected colleges in Dakshina Kannada district.