Hypothesis of the study

The following null hypotheses were formulated keeping in view the objectives of the study

1. There is significant difference between the emotional intelligence (EI) level of the employees of manufacturing and service sector in MIDC
2. There is significant difference in the Self – Awareness level of the employees working of manufacturing and service sector.
3. There is significant difference in the self - management level of the employees of manufacturing and service sector.
4. There is significant difference in the social awareness level of the employees of manufacturing and service sector
5. There is significant difference in the relationship management level of the employees of manufacturing and service sector in MIDC