Yoga in Kashmir Śaivism
And Patañjali's System
(A Study in Interaction)

Synopsis Presents For
DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY
IN
HUMAN CONSCIOUSNESS AND YOGIC SCIENCE

Prof. Navjivan Rastogi
Supervisor
Dr. Suresh Barnwal
Co-supervisor

Yatendra Dutt Amoli
Researcher

DEV SANSKRITI VISHWAVIDYALAYA
HARIDWAR (UTTRAKHAND)
2007
Yoga in Kashmir Śaivism and Patañjali's system
(A study in interaction)

Introduction:

Great thinker of Hindu traditions of Sādhanā, Gōpināth Kaviraj once remarked, "It is a truism that every system of theocratic culture in India has behind it a consistently evolved system of philosophical thought. It is difficult, in present state of our knowledge, to give a definite idea of the numbers of such systems in ancient and mediaeval times and even of the extent of literature comprised under each continued progress in researches in this field is likely to yield fresh materials favorable to the better understanding of the true history and philosophic value of these systems."

Yog is a characteristic dimension of the Indian mind. This observation is particularly relevant in the context of Tantric schools in general and Tantric Śaiva schools of Kashmir in particular in the Āgama literature basic to the tantric traditions, the fourfold division of Āgamic subject matter into doctrine (Jnana), Yoga, ritual (kriya) and conduct (cārya) points to the essentiality of yoga in the tantric scheme. Some Āgamas do follow this line of classification, but the majority, though subscribing to this division in principle, often fail to stick, to it in practice. Some times there is overlapping among the four, or an attempt - with or without conscious effort - is made, especially in the monistic śaiva tantras, to find out an equation or a mutual parallel. This tendency is at its peak; in the Tantraloka (TA) as well as its source Tantra, The Mallinivijayottara (MVT).

The observation by Mircea Eliade that yoga represents a "pan Indian corpus of spiritual techniques" acquire more relevance. It appears that several techniques of yoga have earned acceptance in tantric śaiva monism and that, despite their outward formation formal divergences, there is a close internal agreement. One of the important factors contributing to this agreement is a sort of genetic relationship with fundamental spirit of original yoga of Patañjali.

1. The philosophy of tripura Tantra by Gopinath Kaviraj, article published in Saraswati Bhavan Studies Series.
We are investigating here, relationship of Patanjali's system of yoga to Kashmir Śaiva tradition of sadhana. The moment we think of Kashmir's philosophical and cultural heritage, we are immediately reminded of Kashmir Saivism (KS), the greatest humanistic attainment of Kashmir. This Kashmir Saivism is generally believed to be monistic in temper and idealistic in ideology. We have however, to be very clear that the word Kashmir Saivism has extremely wide connotation and includes within its range all the branches of Śaiva speculation monistic, monistic cum dualistic and dualistic associated with Kashmir. This Saivism is elastic enough as to include Śākta schools of thought within its ambit. If Abhinavagupta’s Tantraloka is any guide, the Trika or Kashmir Saivism stands for the total tantric lore of Kashmir. It has to specially stated that in his magnum opus i.e. Tantrakoka (the light of Tantras), Abhinavagupta dwells on both diverse currents of thought namely Tantraprakriya and Kupapprakriya. While Tantraprakriya is traced straight to Tryambaka, the first ancestor referred to by somananda, the Kula Prakriya is traced to Trayamka through his daughter and is therefore designated as “Ardha–Tryambaka”. To be brief, the Kula system is identified with Kula Prakriya, while the three independent monistic systems namely Trika, Krama and Pratyabhijna are subsumed under the Tantraprakriya of Trayambaka school.\(^5\)

However it is matter of detailed discussion on the historical frame work of Kashmir Saivism, which will be a part of further work. Here we just want to introduce KS in brief introductory mode with its range of philosophical thoughts. The term Kashmir Saivism has extensive application and to some extent, it’s import is geographical. There are two under currents of Indian thought – vedic and Trantric which may be designated respectively as vedic and tantric cultures as well Kashmir saivism is the essence of Tantric culture. According to Gopinath Kaviraj ji it represents an extremely invaluable ancient treasure of Indian thought.\(^6\)

In a special note Kaviraj Ji remarked, “As a matter of fact, the earliest school of yogic discipline is traditionally identified with the way of Bhairava (Stotas), which is based on a hidden knowledge of vaak, combining in it self the element of knowledge and action both. It is technically known as the path of spanda which is logically prior to Jnana and Kriya.”\(^7\)

\(^5\) Dr. N. Rastogi, contribution of Kashmir to Philosophy and culture, Published in Annals of Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona, Vol,LVI, p-28(1975)

According to P.V. Kane, there are two main currents of Yoga. One propagated by Patanjala Yoga, is related to discipling the mind, the other, developed in Goraksasataaka, Hatha Yoga Pradipika, and so on, to discipling the body.³There are known as Rajayoga and Hathayoga respectively. Patanjali’s yoga does not deal with plexuses, arteries, and veins, whereas in Hathayoga the modes of sitting, breath control, physical posture and other practices seek to push forward the coiled energy (Kundalini) to the cranial aperture via the plexuses and central canal (sushman nadi). The description of yoga generally found in tantras reprints the combination of the two in many respects. But because the Hathayogic process can be enacted entirely mentally in the monistic saiva tantras, it emerges there as a mere variant of Rajayoga. In over view, there is a third current, too, which may be termed the supramental current concerned with revealing the identity of individual as pure ideality. The yoga of KS is linked with the growth of this third branch.⁴

⁴¼ In brief yoga in Kashmir Saivism which is often says Trika Yoga, therefore, lies not in attaining one’s inactive witnessing state, but in realizing one’s essence defined by intrinsic freedom of action and cognition. In other word, even though Patanjali’s yoga begins with activity, it rejects that by the time it reaches its finale. On other hand, Trika Yoga and for that matter Tantric Yoga as such, starts with activity and culminates in activity.

³ See P.V. Kane, History of Dharmasastra (Kane), Vol.5, Pt II, 1962, p-1427.

⁴ Dr. N. Rastogi, Kashmir Sivadyavad Ki Mol Avdhamayain. Ch. 13, p-202, (MRML) 2002.
Review of Literature:

1. Vyasa, the celebrated commentator of the Yogasutra (YS), explicitly identifies yoga with Samadhi. It is remarkable that Saiva author Rajanak Ramakantha also employs yoga in this sense.

2. Malinivjayottar Tantra deals with the yoga as realization of identity.

3. According to Ksemaraja (KR), the term dhyana (visualization) in the MVT’s definition of asana includes breath control (pranayama), abstraction (pratyahara), retentive concentration (dharana), meditation and samadhi all together.

4. Astanga yog itself is recognized as para yoga in Netra Tantra (NT), but it is quite different from its namesake propagated by Patanjali. Even though all the terms are derived from Patanjali’s, they carry gnostical definition.

5. Spanda Sandoh 3, 16 and KR comes quite close to Patanjali in their presentation of asana. But KR’s interpretation of S 3, 6 reverses the trend and echoes the position taken by the Netra Tantra (NT) that replaces its substrate Jnanasakti with Saktabala (autonomous force).

6. According to KR, the phrase bhutakaivalya in SS, 3,5 (freedom from element) denotes the stage of abstraction. Isolation from the five elements leads to the abstraction of mind.

---

1. Yogah Samadhih, Bhasya on Yoga Sutra 1/1
3. Malinivjayottar Tantra (MVT), KSTS, 1922, Vol 4, p-4
4. Sivasutaravimarsini (SSV) KSTS, Vol. 1, p-39
5. Netra Tantra (NT), (KR), (KSTS), 8, p-9-16
6. Uddyota on Svachanda Tantra (SVTU) by KR, (KSTS), 1922, p-290
8. SSV on SS 3,5, pp. 39-40, SVT 7, 297-298 with uddyot
7. The MVT, too, dwells briefly on pratyahara. By steadily concentrating on any external object such as sound. The mind becomes one with object during the course of grasping it. The MVT here squares with Patanjali’s teaching on pratyahara except that the senses are replaced here by mind.

8. Sri Vijnana Bhairava Tantra consist 112 types of Dharanas. In some manner they are quite influenced by Patanjali’s definition of dharana.

9. In the commentary of iswarparyabhihujnavimarsani of Abhinavagupta, Bhaskarkantha (18 cent.) employs Astanga yoga for a yogi.

10. In Netra Tanta (NT) we find description of Astanga Yoga

11. K.R. the disciple of Vasugupta, views the suppression cessation of all "other" mental states as the most conductive element of yoga.

12. The characteristic of yogin, according to Abhinavagupta (AG) is the inner blissful experience arising from the loss of states.

9 Yat kimcit citayad vastu nanyatavam pratipadyate I lena tanmayatam apya bhavet pascad abhavat II pancatam iva sampraptas livrair api calyate I tatah sabdadibhit yogi yoginikulandanah II ityanena vidhanena pratyahrtva mano muhuh I pranayamadikam sarvam kuryad yogaprasiddhaye II (MVT 17, 22-24)

10. Dharana word in (VBT) introduced by Bhatta Ananda birst in his commentary on VBT (Vijnana Kaumudi), Vijnana Bhairava, Vrijvallab Dhvedi, (MLBD), p-xx, (2004)

12. Notra Tanta 8/9, 8/21
13. Tantraloka 3, 260 – 261
Justification of Study:

It is a need to distinguish Patanjal Yoga and Yoga of Kashmir Saivism separately, because mostly it is examined the same as six limbed Yoga of KS to eight limbed Yoga of Patanjali. Several techniques of Yoga have earned acceptance in Tantric Saiva monism and that, despite their outward formal divergences, there is a close internal agreement. One of the important factors contributing to this agreement is a sort of genetic relationship with the fundamental spirit of the original Yoga of Patanjali. By this work we are also re-accessing the mystical tradition of Tantra inspired form the statement of great visionary Gopinath Kaviraj (see beginning lines of Introduction).

Although here we explaining a text based study, but this research study is not only for the gathering of some intellectuals but also for the students of philosophy, yoga and ancient Indian sciences to see the Indian thoughts on a new horizon of interaction where KS meets Patanjal Yoga. The study specially explores a new discussion for the student of Yoga on Tantric scheme of thoughts where they know the Yogangas (Limbs of Yoga) as in Tantric cult. Clearly, they will know the basis of yogic thoughts and their Agamic sources.

From ancient to modern, there seems, no lose of scientific temper of our traditional knowledge. Tantra and Yoga are the scientific approaches of our spiritual heritage. By this study we want to prove the vitality of Tantra and Yoga in human life. It is a sense of awareness which connect us to supreme. At last it is my interest to search the deep core of our spiritual & mystical heritage.
Objective:

This work aims at enquiring into the standard form of yoga in the monastic saiva tradition of Kashmir. The genesis of this enquiry lies in every statement one finds in the Patanjali’s system of Yoga. Over the span of four hundred years, from ninth to thirteenth centuries, no one can miss an overt tendency to posit the Tantric yoga as six limbed (sadanga), distinguished from the eight limbed (astanga), yoga of Patanjali. In practice, however, this stand is countered by several parallel techniques laying a similar claim, necessitating a deeper perspective look into the whole problem.

According to Prof. Navijivan Rastogi, Patanjala yoga has substantially influenced the evolution of yoga in KS with regard to both inner structure and formal growth. This has led to two obvious consequences. One is the continued fidelity to astanga yoga despite the occasional leanings toward sadanga yoga; the other is that astanga yoga has gained acceptance only after undergoing a transformation of its original stance. The second conclusion is that the intrinsic characteristics of the Tantric current have lent a new framework, shape, and thrust due to which yoga in KS represent a mixed form of Patanjala yoga and Hatha yoga, acquiring along the way a transcendental disposition. This is because of its sole occupation with immersion in or the rise of plenary awareness, which is nothing but the synthesis of knowledge and action.

Kashmir Saiva philosophy introduce by the name Pratyabhijna School in the Sarvadarsan Sangrah of Sayan-Madhava. Although we shall use the term Kashmir Saivism, which is already discussed.

The main objectives we are looking for interaction between yoga in KS and Yoga Sutras, as follows.

1. To observe the Kashmir Saivistic Yoga in its primary sources, Is there be a developed structure of Yoga?
2. To study the facts of convergences between the two systems i.e. Patanjali Yoga & Kashmir Saivism.
3. To study the facts of divergences between above two.
4. To look on philosophical orientation of these two systems.

---

2. Sarvadarsan Sangrah of Sayan-Madhav by Prof. Umasankar Rishi, Chaukhamba, Varanasi, 8, p-298
Yoga in Kashmir Śaivism and Patañjali’s System
(A Study in Interaction)

Chapters

Chapter - I

Introduction

- Genesis of the research problem
- Scope and methodology of the research work
- Material on Yoga in Kashmir Śaivism

Chapter - II

Origin, Growth and Essential Features of Patanjal Yoga and Kashmir Śaivism

- Origin and Growth of Patanjal Yoga
- Origin and Growth of Kashmir Śaivism
- General Features of Patanjal Yoga
- Essential Features of Kashmir Śaivism.

Chapter - III

Philosophical Orientation of Patanjal Yoga and Kashmir Śaivism

- Contextualization of Patanjal Yoga in Indian Philosophy
- Contextualization of Kashmir Śaivism in Indian Philosophy
- Critical evaluation of modern presentation/exposition of Yoga of Kashmir Śaivism in comparison to Patanjal Yoga.
- Limbent Yogins of Kashmir Śaivism and their contribution.

Chapter - IV

Kashmir Śaivistic Yoga in its primary sources

- the Agamic sources of Kashmir Śaivism, the Agamic texts of Kashmir Śaivism.
• Yoga in the classical Kashmir Saivism
• Different kinds of Yoga in the sub-streams of Kashmir Saivism
• Distinction of Kashmir Saivism from other Tantric currents with special reference to Yoga.

Chapter — V

Convergences between Patanjal Yoga and Kashmir Saivism

• Formative influences of Patanjal Yoga on Kashmir Saivism.
• Advanced Saivistic exposition of some Yoga Sutras in Kashmir Saivism

Chapter — VI

Major divergences between Patanjal Yoga and Kashmir Saivism

Conclusion

Bibliography

Word Index
Bibliography
(In Alphabetical Order)

5. Dasgupta, S.N. The Yoga Philosophy, MLBD.
6. Dasgupta, S.N. Introduction to the History of Indian Philosophy, 5 vols, MLBD.
7. Dasgupta, S.N. The Philosophy of Pantanjali Yoga, MLBD.
17. Netra Tantra, Uddyota, Ksemaraja, KSTS.
24. Sivasutavimarsini, Ksemaraja, KSTS.
26. Spanda Karika Vivrti, Ksemaraja, KSTS, 1925.
सन्दर्भ ग्रन्थ
(देवनागरी वर्णमाला के अनुसार)

1. ब्राह्मण, सुरेशचन्द्र, वासुवल योगदर्शन, योगरितिःभाषाः, चीनभा सूतभाती प्रकाशन, 1996
2. तीर्थ, रचनी ओगनन, पारम्परिक खुशप्रवी, गीतागृह गोरखपुर
3. कार्णिक, श्री विगमा, पारम्परिक योगदर्शन, वाराणसी हिंदूविद्वाद्य प्रकाशन, 4 शाखा, 1991
4. आयुष्म (क), दक्षिणायन, पारम्परिक योगदर्शन, गोरखपुर लाल बाबू संसार 2006
5. कर्तिक, गोपीनाथ, गोपीनाथ, गोपीनाथ, दूसरा काल एवं अन्यन्तरकाल दीपिका तथा शक्ति, राशिन्द्र, 1985
6. —भारतीय संस्कृति और सामाजिक, दो खण्ड, बिहार राज्य विधान परिषद, पटना, 1963-1964
7. —समाज, तत्वज्ञान आदि आदि, शक्तिप्रमाण तत्त्वदर्शिका संस्थी, राशिन्द्र, 1965
8. —तत्त्वज्ञान और राज्य, बिहार राज्य विधान परिषद, पटना,
9. —भारतीय सामाजिक और शक्ति, बिहार राज्य विधान परिषद, पटना,
10. द्विवेदी, शक्ति, समाज, विधानद्वन्द्वी, शक्तिप्रमाण तत्त्वदर्शिका एवं विधानद्वन्द्वी अद्वितीय तत्त्वदर्शिकाओं से शक्तिप्रमाण और राशिन्द्र, 1988
11. द्विवेदी, शक्ति, समाज, विधानद्वन्द्वी, शक्तिप्रमाण तत्त्वदर्शिका एवं विधानद्वन्द्वी

कोष

1. Aihynkar, K.V., एक दिक्स्क्रिट ग्राम्यर, गावकंदा विश्वराज, दिल्ली, 1963.
3. भ्रामरक, भ्रामरक, समाज, अमरकोश, विधान, 1928
4. द्विवेदी, शक्ति, समाज, तत्त्वदर्शिका, 6 भाग, चीनभा संस्कृत ग्राम्यर, सं० 94, राशिन्द्र, 1962